

Join the Celebration: Success Soirée Sponsorship Options

Mali is a vibrant country, rich in history, music, and culture. Yet Mali is one of the poorest countries in the world, and struggles by every measure of poverty, health, and progress.

For thirteen years, Mali Rising Foundation has partnered with families in remote villages of Mali to bring the one proven poverty-reduction strategy to Mali's children: education. We build schools, and partner over the long-term with parents and village leaders to make sure those schools provide quality education and opportunities for children to improve their lives.

You can be part of this successful partnership through sponsorship of Mali Rising's annual celebration – the Success Soirée. Each year, attendees at the Soirée underwrite critical support for our schools, from textbooks, to teacher training, to scholarships .

The Success Soirée is not your normal, stuffy gala. It is an evening of African fun, with delicious West African food, an auction of unique items from Mali and Utah, and a chance to learn about the people and cultures of Mali. Join us as a sponsor:

By nearly every measure today Mali is one of the poorest countries in the world.

Education allows kids to help themselves, & help Mali.

For every year of secondary education, future earnings increase by 10 to 20%.

For every additional year of school the average citizen has, GDP increases by 0.37%.

With just a 10% increase in a country's middle school enrollment, the risk of war decreases by 3%.

If all women had a secondary education, estimates are there would be 49% fewer infant and child deaths.

We use a model of partnership with remote villages.

In partnership with local villages, we have built 20 successful schools.

Before Mali Rising construction, our students walked about 3-5 miles on average to reach a school.

Our graduation rate is approximately 1.5x the national average.

We do more than build a school & walk away: we train teachers, provide materials, & much more.

You can help.
